New at the Reedsville Historical Building

If you have been hearing chimes and music coming from the west side of Reedsville you haven't imagined it. It is real and it is coming from the restored clock on the St. Mary's steeple. It started December 24th and the bells have been chiming and Christmas music playing on the hour at 9:00 a.m., noon, 3:00 p.m., and 6:00 p.m. until January 6th.

The Preservation of St. Mary's organization has restored the clock to it's original state through the Lee Manufacturing Company. The original clock was installed January of 1908.

The organization has held many fund raisers to pay for part of the restoration and will continue to seek donations towards the rest of the project.

The next project is to replace the St. Joseph stain glass window on the west side of the building. It is planned to be completed by March 19th, St. Joseph's Day. Activities are being planned for it's dedication on March 19th.

Watch for it in the following news articles. If you are interested in more information call 754-4370.

22 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE

Sunrise Horse Farm

On November 28th we had our Thanksgiving and Christmas Family Gathering for the children, teens and their families. It is always a fun time getting to know the families, doing a project together, and then having a meal together. Thanks to one of our special volunteers, Angie Schambureck, who supplied all the items needed to make Christmas cards for the soldiers in Iraq. Each card was unique and will touch the heart of someone that will not be home for Christmas. Thanks to the Amvets in Manitowoc for sending the cards to the soldiers. Our winter family gathering will be Sunday, January 9th. If you have an idea for an activity at our family gatherings, please contact us. Also, we are in need of volunteers to help with the feeding, cleaning stalls, and other various projects. We here at Sunrise wish everyone a very Happy New Year.

No need to suffer in silence

Urinary incontinence is a common problem affecting millions of women. This condition is frequently under diagnosed and under reported because it's a sensitive issue.

Incontinence can be the result of many years of changes in the body, especially in women. Common risk factors include childbirth, improper lifting of heavy objects, chronic constipation, or the loss of estrogen after menopause.

Over time these factors may contribute to a weakening of the pelvic floor muscles, leading to poor bladder control.

Urge incontinence, or overactive bladder, is a loss of bladder control following a strong urge to urinate. The person is not able to hold urine long enough to make it to a restroom. There are prescription medications to relax the bladder muscles that may help with urge incontinence.

Stress incontinence is characterized by the accidental loss of urine during a sudden movement such as coughing, sneezing, lifting or engaging in physical activity.

For stress incontinence, many women get good results from using Kegel exercises and other behavioral and lifestyle changes, or medical devices called pessaries.

Physical therapists use various methods to help clients correct pelvic floor weaknesses, including biofeedback techniques and electrical stimulation of the pelvic floor muscles.

For difficult-to-treat cases, surgery can help support weakened muscles related to bladder function. Newer surgical techniques are usually minimally invasive and offer quicker recovery times.

In most cases, incontinence can be successfully treated with non-surgically.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE FLU SHOT

Recently, I watched a 2 hour DVD by Dr. Tenpenny, MD on this subject. It was definitely filled with information that everyone needs to know.

This information is from her brochure: What's in the regular flu shot?

Egg proteins: including avian contaminant viruses
Gelatin: known to cause allergic reactions and anaphylaxis are usually associated with sensitivity to egg or gelatin.

Polysorbate 80 (Tween80): can cause severe allergic reactions, including anaphylaxis.

Formaldehyde: known carcinogen

Triton X100: a strong detergent

Sucrose: table sugar

Resin: known to cause allergic reactions

Gentamycin: an antibiotic

Thimerosal: Mercury is still in multidose vials

For more information on her extensive research, which includes the ineffectiveness of the flu shot, and the side effects of the flu shot, go to her website: www.Dr.Tenpenny.com

January special - 25% off the retail price of Silver Shield, which Dr. Gordon Pedersen recommends for combating the flu.
